

Tallaght
University
Hospital

An Academic Partner of Trinity College Dublin

Ospidéal
Ollscoile
Thamhlachta

Arts+Health
at Tallaght University Hospital

A Geometric Progression

Hospital Street TUH | Feb 2023 – April 2023

An intriguing selection of artworks by GRID Collective features both individual and collaborative pieces by this trio of artists. Kindly supported by the Meath Foundation.

'Conversation 2' by Mary Nolan, Helen Blair and Fifi Smith.

TUH are delighted to announce A Geometric Progression as our opening exhibition of 2023 on Hospital Street. Illustrating the evolution of GRID Collective over the past six years, the exhibition includes new works by the collective's members, Helen Blair, Mary Catherine Nolan, and Fifi Smith, with several pieces demonstrating the ethos of the collaborative process. They note; 'collaborating with Arts Officer Alison Baker Kerrigan to curate the 40 pieces on view has given us the opportunity to see our art with a fresh, and often revealing, perspective. And while holding the exhibition in a hospital environment has made us more aware of the specifics of certain locations, it has also opened us to new ways of presenting, and indeed interpreting, our artworks.'

The GRID Collective manifesto is beautifully simple, Collaboration–Disruption–Creativity, openly inviting the viewer into a visual conversation as the artists explore the push and pull between formality and randomness. Enjoy viewing, feedback is welcomed.

*To purchase an artwork or for further information about GRID Collective please visit www.gridcollective.ie or scan the QR code on the accompanying exhibition label.

Contact the Arts & Health Programme in TUH, Alison Baker Kerrigan

Tel 01-414 2076 | artsandhealth@tuh.ie

The Meath Foundation
Fondúireacht Na Mí

Healthcare Research, Education, Quality Improvement
& Arts in Health at Tallaght University Hospital